JUVENILE DEPRAVITY.

Queen-square Police Office.
A gentleman of high respectability and of considerable fortune, presented himself before the sitting Magistrate (W. Fielding, Esq.) under the following distressing and interesting circumstances:—He stated that among several other children, he had one, a son, just turned thirteen years of age, whose unaccountable depravity of disposition had caused him the greatest trouble, and very much disturbed his happiness and peace of mind. It was highly painful for him to relate the misdeeds of his own child, but not only a regard to present justice, but the boy's future welfare both in this world and the next, compelled him to divulge the whole of his conduct, in order that he, the magistrate, might be better enabled to advise him what steps would be the best to pursue in a situation so perilous and affecting. About two years and a half ago, several articles of value in his house were missing, such as silver spoons, and other sideboard articles of plate; and it was at length found out that this boy, (youth as he was) had been the depredator. Every means of reclaiming him from so dreadful a propensity had been tried in vain; both chastisement, and the most persuasive argument, had proved equally ineffectual. Finding it impossible to keep him at home, on account of his brothers and sisters, he had put him to a school, at a distance from town; but he soon contrived to decamp from the situation, and took with him several articles of value, which he, as his father, was obliged to make good, to the amount within last year, of upwards of 80*l*. besides the expenses of his board and education. Two months ago he absconded from the school where he was placed, and has never been heard of until a few days past; that intelligence had been given to him (the father) of his being one of a gang of young thieves who had for some time infested Chelsea, and its vicinity, amounting in number to 18 or 19. Shocked at this account, and trembling for the fate of one so near to him, he had personally set out in search of him in that neighborhood, and after several hours of arduous quest and trembling enquiry, he was fortunate enough to meet with him last night a little before dark, and not being either able or willing to admit him under his parental roof, he lodged him in St. Margaret's watch house. The gentleman further stated, that after he had got to the watch house, the boy confessed that he had for some weeks belonged to the gang of thieves before alluded to, and gave in a list of many, if not all their names. The boy told him they slept generally of late on a dung hill near Chelsea; sometimes in stables and outhouses. He expected to have found the officers, in whose custody he had left him, at the office with the boy. In about half an hour, two constables of St. Margaret's parish, brought up the boy from the watch house. His appearance as to figure and make was rather interesting, being well grown for his years, with a countenance by no means denoting an inclination to such unworthy addictions. Mr. Fielding addressed him in a dignified manner on his dishonorable conduct, which brought a blush of shame over his countenance; and when he cast his eyes upon his father, there were such marks of confusion and contrition that the magistrate expressed a hope he was not gone too far to be reclaimed. Mr. Fielding asked him where he first got acquainted with the gang in question? He answered, in the Park, on a morning, on the relieving guard. How came he to be so shabbily dressed? They had made him sell his clothes, shoes, stockings &c. the proceeds of which had been shared amongst them, and his present dress had been given to him. He gave in a list of their names, and the places they frequent, which was given into the hands of Gilmore, the officer, with orders to make the most diligent, speedy and effectual search after them.

Mr. Fielding communicated privately to the gentleman the steps he would advise him to pursue respecting the boy's future destination, which he assured him he would make the most speedy arrangements to carry into effect. In the mean time, the boy was committed to Tothill-fields Bridewell, and the keeper was particularly desired not to let him mix with any of the other prisoners, but keep him entirely by himself. [Lond. paper.]

FATAL EFFECTS OF SEDUCTION.

Saturday an inquisition was held at the White Heart, London, on view of the body of Miss Mary-Ann Scales, an interesting young woman, eighteen years of age. It appeared that the deceased had quitted her paternal roof for some time, and occupied elegant furnished apartments in a respectable house in the neighborhood, where she passed as a married woman under the assumed name of Mrs. Williams, and where she was frequently visited by a gentleman, who passed as her husband, but who has been supposed to be her seducer, and whose desertion led to the melancholy catastrophe.

Elizabeth Young said she lived at No. 39, Plummer's-row; about half past eleven o'clock last Monday forenoon, the mother of the deceased called on her to enquire if she had seen her child, as she was very uneasy on her account, not having seen her since Saturday morning—a thing very unusual, as she was in the habit of frequently visiting her. Witness informed her she had not seen her. They then went together to the house in which the deceased lived, and enquired of the lady who kept the house, who informed them she had not seen her for some time. The window blinds being down, roused their suspicions that all was not right, and they went to the door of her apartment. The mother of the deceased went in first, and exclaimed, in the most piteous cry, "O God! my poor child is dead in bed!" Witness followed and saw the deceased dead in her bed, partly dressed, and partly undressed. There was a tea cup standing on the chimney piece, with a sort of black sediment in it, and a glass of water on the table. There appeared no marks of violence on her person. The people of the house are highly respectable; and she had no cause to suspect any person. She knew the deceased for about three years; and from her being a playful sprightly girl, she became quite melancholy and low spirited, which witness attributed to her having formed an improper connexion.

The Jury returned a verdict of "Died, supposed from poison." The following is the copy of a letter found in her toilet, which, from the post mark, it appears she received on the Thursday before her death:—

"Again I am obliged to send you paper, instead of appearing myself. My mind is constantly on the rack, and my time so divided, that I find to my sorrow that I am utterly incapable of keeping any engagement that I may make; therefore I shall make no more, but trust to chance and fortune. My partner still continues dangerously indisposed. I have occasion to go and see him almost every day, to Camberwell. How long this state of things may continue with me I know not; but this I do know, that I shall rejoice much when they are terminated. My health, of late, is somewhat impaired. To-morrow morning I shall leave London for a few days, and return on Wednesday next—longer I cannot stop. As you are difficult of belief, I must rely, or rather appeal, to your liberality for the truth of this statement.

"I remain yours, sincerely,
"Thursday evening. J. W."

There is a labour of the mind as well as of the body; and some employ themselves very usefully to society, who perform but little with their hands

ALEXANDRIA: MONDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1817.

INFALLIBILITY OF THE CHURCH.

Res incerta in re incerta cernitur.

MR. EDITOR,

The public may now indulge the hope that their redemption draweth nigh, since our opponent offers us the advantage desired by Nero, who wished that the Roman people had but one head, that he might decapitate them at one blow. He is willing, like Bellarmine, to make infallibility summa rei christianae, the foundation of the Christian religion. Every man who believes he has a soul to save, ought to examine this subject most seriously; for, if it be thus important, if they who do not believe in it are to linger in eternal torment, as the article of the council of Trent implies, and the Pope on every holy Thursday denounces, then there is a moral obligation upon every one to examine into the reasons, and if they are sufficient, to pray for a speedy repentance and reformation. Let us then patiently and impartially pursue the investigation.

One of the principal advantages affirmed of infallibility is, that it tends to produce and preserve unity. Protestants are reminded of their disunion and their various opinions, and are told that it is far better for them to return to this Jerusalem, which preserves the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace. But, in truth, have there been as extensive and as scandalous schisms in any church as in that of Rome? For instance: where was her unity when that terrible schism took place in the year 419, between Boniface and Eulalius, and which caused the emperor Honorius to order them both into banishment? And, on this occasion, where was not only unity, but papal supremacy, that the emperor had not learned better manners? Where was the unity of the church when, in the year 591, she was miserably rent by the contention of Formosus and Sergius? Both were chosen, and each published infallible bulls against the other. Where was unity when the schism occurred in 965 between Benedict V. and Leo VIII? Platina could not determine which was Pope, but put both in his lives. Where was it in the year 1080, when the peace of all Christendom was disturbed by the rival Popes Clement III. and Gregory VII?—Where was it in 1118, when began the schisms between Clement VIII. and Calixtus II? Calixtus took an effectual method of putting down the schism, by marching an army to Rome and taking his rival prisoner. How much was such unity worth? After the death of Adrian IV. happened another feud, which agitated the Christian world for 19 years—But, above all, where was papal unity when the Popes Urban VI. and Clement VII. in the year 1738, arrayed all Christendom under their hostile banners?—During this commotion, which involved Europe in the most dreadful calamities, there were sometimes three supreme heads and three opposite lines of succession to St. Peter's chair; each of them contending and thundering anathemas against the others. These are but a few instances, out of many that might be given, of the wonderful unity of the church of Rome. They who contend that there was any infallibility in all this turmoil, must consent to place it in the secular power, for that was the tribunal which often had to determine which of the rival Popes was the successor of St. Peter.

In order to prove that the scriptures are not a sufficient guide, Mr. B. tells us that "there have been Unitarians ever since the 4th century, and yet each party, with the scripture in their hand, have not been able to determine the dispute." I think he has here committed a felo de se, and used an argument which cuts his own throat. For the greater part of the time that he says Unitarianism has been prevailing, his infallibility was in full operation. Where was its boasted virtue, that it did not compose and settle this heresy? If infallibility was incompetent to preserve unity here, when it had the power and the will to enforce ecclesiastical censures by secular pains, why should it be made matter of objection to Protestants that Unitarians, who were generated and nourished, as M. B. tells us, under the papal dynasty, should still continue to exist?

Great stress is laid upon the consideration that recourse must be had to tradition, in order to prove the authority of the scriptures. But, is there not a material difference between our making a man, or any set of men, evidence of a fact, and our taking them for infallible directors in doctrine? If I believe a thing for your telling me so, without any other reason, then I believe it purely upon your authority; but if a man, I never saw before, makes a thing very evident to me, and convinces my reason, I believe not then upon his authority, for he has none with me, but upon the evidence he adduces. Now, if the Papist has no other evidence than the authority of his church to prove the scripture, I see not how he will convince a Deist, who denies both. But if the Protestant tells him that he believes the scriptures and the facts therein related, upon the same and much stronger grounds than he has for believing that there was such a man as Alexander or Caesar; yet he tells him this, not on the authority, far less the infallibility, of any man or number of men that say so, but from the nature of the evidence, which makes it impossible for mankind to concert such a fallacy and carry it on without being detected. Now, if the Romanists will let their church come in as part of the evidence of Christianity, she will not be refused, so far as her share goes; but upon her authority alone, the truth of the scriptures will be a jest to the Deist; since her authority she pretends to prove by the scriptures which they deny, and then back again in the circle, the scriptures by her authority.

Who can believe that He who shed his blood to purchase to himself a universal church, (not the mere local church of Rome) should afterwards abandon it to such infallibility as poor, frail man possesses: No, no; He has laid in Zion a better foundation; he has built his church not upon Peter, but "upon the prophets and apostles, himself being the chief corner stone;" not upon Petrus, but upon Petra, the rock of ages. The canon law which he has bequeathed, is the new testament sealed with his blood, and confirmed by illustrious miracles. This charter of our salvation received its finishing stroke from the hand of the apostles, and was guarded by a woe denounced against him who takes from and adds thereto.—Herein are contained all things necessary to salvation. Whatever extra information which we may derive from the history of the church in subsequent time, as suggesting matters of discipline and ecclesiastical polity, we may approve or reject as they appear expedient, and conformable with the scripture. Through this source we learn what books were deemed canonical; we learn also something in detail of the organization of the church, and the fact that the Sabbath was changed from the seventh to the first day of the week. We lawfully use these writers as evidences of facts; but in point of doctrine we are to regard them just as any other fallible men who give their opinions.

It is to the scriptures alone, our Lord directs us to repair for instruction.—"Search the scriptures: If any man will do my will, he shall know of the doctrine whether it be of God." "Is it not absurd," says St. Chrysostom, "that when you receive money you do not trust other men but examine it yourselves, & when you are to judge of things, then to be drawn away by other men's opinions?—And this is the worse fault because you have the scriptures." And this is the reply I would make to the dilemma suggested by my candid adversary: viz. "you, sir, believe that transubstantiation is false, and I believe it to be true; what then are we to do?" In omnibus caritas. Let us agree to differ. But let us use the reason which God has given us and examine the subject by the light of scripture and of the primitive church, adopting the maxim, nihilus additus jure: verba magistri. If I knew where to find an infallible guide, I would gladly take a journey to Rome to see the vera acta; but alas! Mr. B. his Holiness would unsay much of what you have told me, and leave me in doubt at last which of the two guides to follow. Bellarmine would contradict both of you, and others would contradict you all, and so my weak head would only catch the general vertigo.—What then can a plain, unlearned man like myself, utterly unable to comprehend these scholastic subtilties do better, than to read my bible which teaches me that there is therein a path of duty so plain that the "way-laying man, though a fool, might not err therein." "God receiveth the learned and unlearned," an old fashioned book tells me, "and casuists none away." The scripture is full, as well of low valleys, plain ways, and easy for every man to walk in, as also of high hills and mountains which few can climb into." "Whosoever giveth his mind to holy scripture," says St. Chrysostom, "with holy religion and burning desire, shall not want help. If we lack a learned man to instruct us, yet God himself from above will give his light unto our minds to teach us those things that are necessary for us." Which, then, I ask, is the safest guide: this scripture, expounded by an honest mind depending on divine assistance, or that anomalous which is neither visible, tangible, nor definable? But, that our opponent may be able to "rise to the height of this great argument," I propose, on the next occasion, to consider the question as a question of fact, and to enquire if this infallibility, even as defined by himself, has not erred by contradicting itself and the scriptures.

In the mean time I will give him an opportunity of reconsidering the assertion which must have crept very inadvertently into his last postscript, that "the church in Great Britain has exercised more tyranny and cruelty within the last 300 years, than the Roman church in any equal period!"

We learn that the president of the U. States has appointed Capt. ARTHUR S. CLAIB, and Capt. J. D. ELLIOTT, of the navy, in conjunction with brig. general SWIFT and BERNARD, col. M'RAE and major ARMISTEAD, to examine the defensible points at the entrance of the Chesapeake, Hampton Roads, &c.—We also learn that these gentlemen are expected to be here in a few days, when they will immediately proceed upon the duty assigned them. It will be recollected that this survey was made last year by coms. RODGERS, DEXTER and PORTER, with a view to the selection of a suitable situation for a Naval Depot, but their opinions differing very materially upon that subject, a new survey has been ordered; in the mean time works preparatory to the erection of a castle on Old Point Comfort have been commenced, and are in a great state of forwardness.

AFFRAY AT FORT HARRISON.

A few days since an Indian possessed himself of a horse belonging to a lad then at the fort, and refusing to give him up without a tribute, which the boy could not procure.—Mr. Smith, a resident there, interfered. After a short altercation the Indian wounded him with a knife, which he left sticking in his body.—Another Indian seizing the knife and making off with it was promptly pursued by some of the inhabitants; and Capt. Hamilton, of that place coming up with him, knocked him over and gave him some heavy blows, which were considered mortal.—They then returned and were informed of having mistook the Indian, who had wounded Mr. Smith, and who was then making off on horseback.—Pursuit was immediately given and the Indian refusing to stop was shot by Capt. Hamilton, and soon expired. We are happy to state that through the exertions of gen. Posey, the affair was amicably adjusted and the remaining Indians departed professing perfect satisfaction.

PROFESSOR ALLEN.

The melancholy circumstances which led to the death of Professor Allen of Middlebury college, briefly noticed in our last, are more fully detailed in the following paragraph, from the Christian Messenger:—

"Professor Allen last week on Tuesday, about three o'clock in the afternoon, went out on the roof of the new college edifice for the purpose of fixing a board on one of the centre chimnies to prevent its smoking below. A large pole happened to lie from this chimney to another, through it was an auger hole, which made it very weak, and which probably he did not notice. While he was standing on his pole it broke. He fell to the roof, and from thence to the ground, about forty feet. He was immediately carried into one of the college rooms, where medical aid was soon afforded, but in vain. He expired about ten the same evening. During this distressing period of his conflict with the king of terrors, he manifested to his numerous and deeply afflicted friends around him, that though his fall was his death, yet that he had fallen into the arms of that saviour whose follower he had professed to be, and who granted him the cheering support of his presence during this his short passage "through the valley of the shadow of death." He was not able to speak much—what he did say, was expressive of that resignation to the divine will which the Christian religion alone can bestow. "The Lord reigneth, let the earth rejoice," was his language; a language uttered in an hour when depression and hypochrysy retire, and the soul honest and sincere, shows what it is.

"Thus while in the full enjoyment of health, cheerfulness, and the affection of all who knew his worth, was suddenly cut down, a young man, who was an ornament of the institution with which he was connected; whose prospects of happiness were exceeded by none and whose active benevolence stamped sincerity upon his christian profession.

"Mr. Allen had reached his 29th year."

Land for Sale.

IF early application is made, I will dispose of 400 acres of the CEDAR GROVE tract of land. There is surplus timber and fire wood enough on the part I purpose selling to pay, with judicious management, more than half the purchase money, at the price I ask. The situation is healthy, and the land fertile. Contiguity to market is also among its advantages; it being within less than a mile of Mr. Jonathan Janney's mill, where the Alexandria price may be had for grain. Persons wishing to purchase will apply to the subscriber, residing at Cedar Grove, ten miles below Alexandria, and one below Janney's mill.

This farm lies in the centre of an excellent neighborhood—is handsomely situated—abundantly watered, and has upon it an ample proportion of wood. The soil is naturally strong, and a considerable portion of it has for some years past, been cultivated according to the most approved rules of modern husbandry. Possession will be given on the first day of January next. The terms upon which this property will be sold, will be made known upon application to George L. Brent, of Stafford County, Va. or to the subscriber living in Alexandria.

Look here!

GREAT BARGAINS.

THE subscriber intending shortly to remove to the southward, offers for sale to the highest bidder, on Monday the 15th day of October next, if fair, if not, the next fair day, 1 tract of LAND, containing 774 acres, it being a part of an undivided tract of land called Buckley's Tract. There is on this tract a dwelling house, with several rooms, fine springs and rivulets, of excellent water, an excellent apple orchard of early and late fruit, also a peach orchard, and about 25 acres of wood land annexed. This farm produces exceedingly well, and is divided into two fields.

Also, one other tract of LAND, containing 56 acres, called Pritchard's Tract. About one half of this tract is in fine thriving timber and wood land, with a proportion of good low ground suitable for meadow.

Also, I will lease for two lives, (ages 23 and 34 years) or for a term of years, one other tract of LAND, on which I reside, containing, by actual survey, 3324 acres. The improvements are a small dwelling house, granary and corn house, meat house, large stable not yet covered, cabins for Negroes, &c. This tract abounds with many pure and delightful SPRINGS and branches of water, which never fail, with about 50 acres of thriving timber and wood land; also, an apple orchard, with a number of bearing peach trees of the most delicious kind. About 400 grafted apple trees in nursery of the choicest selected latter fruit. This farm is under a tolerable good fence, and divided into two fields. These three tracts lie adjoining, and will be sold separate to suit purchasers, and it can be proved these tracts were originally of the first quality high lands, with white flint and grey stone (mostly piled) soil of a chocolate color, and produces good crops of corn, wheat, rye, oats, tobacco, potatoes and vegetables, &c. &c. abounding in grass, which affords a fine natural pasture for stock of every kind. A small lot of this land was sown in clover, which produced a fine crop without the aid of manure or plaster. There is about 80 acres of high and low grounds, well taken in Timothy, and at least 40 more of low ground, which might easily be converted into meadow with but little expense.

About 20 acres of fallow will be sown in rye, and any person who may purchase shall have liberty to seed about 70 acres of corn land immediately, or fallow and seed any quantity they please. On the east and west side of these lands there is a very extensive range for stock. On this tract there is an excellent seat for MILLS or other MACHINERY on a never failing stream—the fall so great having been levelled, the water may be worked over twice. A part of the materials for building a mill has already been procured. This year plaster has been tried for the first time on this land upon corn with admirable effect. One of my neighbors plastered a clover lot adjoining this land last spring, which produced a very abundant and excellent crop. It is now the opinion of those who have tried the plaster on lands in this settlement, that it acts as powerfully here as on the Loudoun lands. Those who may disbelieve it I invite to come and see for themselves. These lands lie about 2-1/2 miles south-east of Centerville, 2 miles only from the turnpike road—20 miles from Alexandria, Georgetown and the city of Washington, and is so extremely healthy, having no marshy lands near it—the situation high and agreeably diversified—the air so pure and salubrious, that during the five years past, the time I have had this farm in possession, not one death by sickness has occurred in my family of more than thirty persons, of white and black. Nothing but the want of funds to improve these lands possessing so many natural advantages, induces me to dispose of them. Possession of the two last described tracts will be given to the purchaser on, or before the first day of November next; a good and indisputable title will be made to the purchaser, and the lands shewn to any person who may wish to view them before the sale.

TERMS of sale for the lands, one half cash in hand, the other half in 12 months, the purchaser giving bond with two approved securities.

Will be sold at the same time and place for CASH in hand, upwards of 100 barrels of good corn standing in the field—likewise the fodder—also, several valuable N. GROES, HORSES and gigs, MULKS, CATTLE, among which are some good milch cows and one yoke of oxen. SHEEP, HOGS, FARMING UTENSILS of various descriptions. HOUSEHOLD and KITCHEN furniture. Sale to commence at 12 o'clock. For further particulars apply to the subscriber living on the premises. All persons to whom I am indebted will please present their claims, on, or soon after the day of sale, if convenient, otherwise I shall call on them and adjust all outstanding claims.

James Kennedy & Son,

BOOKSELLERS,

KING STREET, ALEXANDRIA.

RESPECTFULLY inform the public that they have just received from

Lee's Medicine Store,

No. 46, Maiden lane, New-York, a fresh supply of the following valuable MEDICINES:

Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges.

Which have within sixteen years past cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from WORMS, and from obstructions or foulness in the stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mild est purgative that can be used on any occasion.

Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Terebra or large round worm; the Ascarides or small man-worm; the Cucurbitine or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Taenia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy and fetid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; pains in the head and thighs and lowness of spirits; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent "the vomiting and purging of children"—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS and MALIGNANT FEVERS is recommended.

Hahn's ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its last appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.
